WasteCo announces that James Redmayne will resign from his executive role

WasteCo Group Ltd announces that James Redmayne has given notice that effective 30 June 2024, James is to resign from his executive role with WasteCo and will therefore no longer be an executive director and will transition to being a non-independent director effective 1 July 2024.

James has been with the business since its inception in 2013 and was integral in the company's transition from a private to a listed entity in 2022. Late last year James conveyed his desire to step away from the CEO role and has assisted in successfully integrating our new CEO David Peterson over the last few months.

James remains a key shareholder and director on the board and will be available to the company in a consulting capacity in the months following his departure.

About WasteCo

WasteCo is a leading South Island waste solution company, processing and diverting liquid and solid waste from landfill. It provides comprehensive solutions for household, commercial, industrial and local authority customers.

WasteCo is New Zealand's only diamond certified Toitū Enviromark waste solutions provider and delivers outcomes that ensure its customers are at the leading edge of the sustainability frontier.

The company provides waste and sorting options as well as waste remediation, sweeping and industrial cleaning services – all delivered using leading edge technology and highly trained customer focussed staff.

The Christchurch-based business was established in 2013.
